My group followed the contract that we outlined, there was no issues of breaching. They did their level of work that was agreed upon. We communicated a lot during this assignment as feedback was given while also receiving feedback. I feel like I followed the group contract 90 percent of the time, with the 10 being not answering in the 1-hour time span. About the level of work, we all talked about how we can make the workload equal to three people. No one had less or more workload and we communicated our thoughts. We had our work planned out and who would send the work each time, there were no issues on either part. I did put my best quality of work in this project as it wouldn't be fair to my teammates if I was lazing off. What I could have done differently to improve my writing process would be to read my work more consistently. Another thing would be to be more talkative in a sense as I felt as I was not talking as much as I wanted. I felt researching about the proposal breakdown and budget is something I am proud of, as I searched for the smallest information that will impact out proposal. Being able to use the information to make a breakdown of the budget was something I never done and was an interesting experience to me. The number of sources I used was a good amount but there were many more I could have used but did not. The communication of the group was strong as we asked each other questions, feedback and reviews. We would decide our section or would be picked by someone else with no arguments. We were supportive of each other while make the proposal and after presenting as I stuttered, and no unwanted comments were made.
